Board of Education
Plainfield, New Jersey

Gentlemen :

I herewith submit the annual report for 1934-35. The usual statistical tables are attached hereto. In my report to you I mentioned those items which have received the most thought and emphasis during the year. Of these, the attempt to progress in adapting the services of the schools to the individual abilities and needs has continued to be most important in our supervisory and teaching effort. For many years we have been proceeding upon the basic philosophy that each child in the system shall have the benefit of as much feeling of success and achievement as his ability will permit. I think that now there is general recognition among the patrons of the schools that we have made considerable progress toward the achievement of this ideal. Comments of parents on the happiness of their children in the schools are general enough to make us believe that the efforts of the teachers are being rewarded.

Failure in school has come to be recognized by the public as one of the causes contributing to delinquency and crime, especially in the case of unstable personalities. In recognition of that fact, we are endeavoring to change our procedure, and to adapt our curricula to the individual student.

The time is long past when the winnowing process of failure and defeat can be used as a basic procedure in public education. No longer can we discourage a boy or girl into leaving school and going to work. Even if such method were at all defensible there is now no work for them to go to. In too many instances they can only go to an environment which may too often undo any good which the school might have accomplished.

Lack of employment with the result that practically all pupils are staying in school till they are seventeen or eighteen years of age or more has greatly accentuated the necessity for diversifying curricula and procedure in the high school.

In this respect more progress has been made in the elementary grades than in the high school. Two reasons are chiefly responsible; first, the problem is not so complex in the elementary schools; and second, because effort has been directed for a longer period of time in this field.

The chief agent of progress has been the substitution of interest, activity, and pupil participation in the spirit and life of the school, for the repressive authoritative type of discipline. Increased emphasis in the educational values of music, art, dramatics, athletics, and handwork have contributed to making the grade schools active live institutions.

In the past few years a large number of special classes composed of backward academic pupils has been formed and placed under teachers who have been sympathetic to this type of pupil. The academic school work has been adapted to the ability of the pupils and more handwork has been provided. The results have been highly satisfactory.

The high school situation is more complex. In years past pupils selected certain courses and many of them after the first, second or third year of failure or slow progress left school. For years we have had industrial arts courses which could be selected by pupils who expected to enter some form of semi-technical or industrial activity after leaving school. The commercial curriculum has also been available for vocational training for business. A large part of the student body has selected these courses with the hope that they would be afforded training which would lead to greater opportunity in their working lives. Failure and defeat in these courses has been too great.

Three years ago a layman, who had been interested for years in the under-privileged high school pupils, donated to the Plainfield Board of Education a sufficient sum of money to pay the salary of a teacher to conduct an experiment in adapting the academic work to the abilities of a class of this type of pupil. For this group the time given to handwork was considerably increased. More attention was given to instruction in health and civics. The experiment was successful and furnished experience for the teacher and the supervisors for further work along this line.

In February two teachers were added to the high school staff to permit the release of five other teachers for part time counselling and guidance work. This is an important step forward. The teachers who were selected were those who are especially interested in the program of adjustment of the individual student to the offerings of the school. It is expected that the start in guidance will be continued and expanded so that failure due to improper and unintelligent selection of courses shall be reduced to a minimum.

We are sure that better guidance will be of great aid in bringing about a general improvement in the spirit and life of the school.

If more pupils feel that they are progressing toward success according to their abilities, there will necessarily follow an improvement in the morale of the entire school.

Previous mention has been made of the satisfactory results of emphasis on music, art, dramatics, and handwork in the grade schools as factors of decided improvement. The sudden growth of the high school population during the last five years, with no proportionate increase in the teaching staff, has without doubt, had an unfavorable result on the general spirit and effectiveness of the school. So many pupils have had no active participation in sports, play productions, vocal and instrumental music, and public appearance before assemblies, that there has grown a distinct feeling that they are not a real part of the life of the school. Not only has the school spirit of the institution suffered but also the valuable experiences of participation in the above activities has been denied to a too large number of pupils.

During the year Principal Galen Jones has been fully aware of the condition of the school and has made progress in its improvement. I am confident that continued improvement can and will be made, but that there will be limitations set by lack of funds to employ sufficient personnel, and by the lack of physical space to carry on effectively under the crowded conditions.

It is encouraging to the administration of the schools to report the action of our Board of Education in voting the necessary funds to relieve the crowding in the high school. Construction of a four room building in the rear of the high school was started in February, 1935. This building will increase the space for shop rooms and provide a much needed classroom for instrumental music. $27,500 was voted by the city government to purchase materials and equipment for the construction of the building. Labor is being furnished by the Union County Emergency Relief Administration.

The Board of Education voted unanimously on June 11, 1935 to request the Board of School Estimate to authorize the raising of funds for the construction of additions to the Hubbard and Maxson Schools for use as junior high schools. The Board of School Estimate approved the action of the Board of Education and in August, 1935, the Common Council voted to apply to the Public Works Administration for a loan and grant in total amount of $700,000 to construct and furnish the buildings. A grant of 45% would make the cost to the city $385,000.

The decision to build the junior high schools was no hurriedly conceived plan, but has been a part of the planned building program of the Board of Education for over ten years.

Not until space is provided for the two junior high schools can we fully correct the deficiencies of the services in high school, nor can we offer a modern program of education to the community.

Costs

In previous reports I have detailed a record of costs and tax rates as affected by the expenses of the school system.

The tax rate for schools for 1934-35 was \$1.007 per \$100. For the year 1935-36 it is \$.961 per \$100. This reduction was effected by applying to the reduction of taxes, salary contributions of  $3\frac{1}{2}\%$  of the salaries of teachers and other Board of Education employees, which had been formerly given to the Childrens Relief Committee. The application of a sum of about \$23,000 was made on the request of the Mayor and councilmanic members of the Board of School Estimate so that taxes could be reduced, and with the assurance that for the school year 1935-36 the City government would provide the necessary funds to carry on the lunches for the school children.

$752,750 was raised for schools in local taxes in 1932. It is from that date that budget cuts have been made. For 1935 the amount is $581,482, a reduction of $171,268 or over 22%. Examination of other costs of government reveals that the school system has done its full share in tax reduction.

Childrens Relief Committee

The city should accord its full recognition of the splendid work of child feeding which was continued by the committee during the year. There is no question in the minds of those who are closely associated with the children, that the lunches are a vital supplement to home relief. Meals balanced in nutritional elements and prepared by the employees of the committee have not only satisfied the hunger of the moment, but have safeguarded against physical disability and disease.

An average of about 700 children were fed daily. Employees were paid by the committee. The total expenditures for food, supplies, and services was $23,410.

Teachers and Supervisors

The system is staffed by a laudably competent staff of principals, supervisors, and teachers. It is my judgment that the school year was one of the best in my experience in Plainfield.

There has been a general recognition that current conditions are a challenge to each teacher to be more helpful and sympathetic to problems which pupils are meeting at home, and in school. I have every confidence that with the continued public support, the local system will not only maintain its standard of service, but will continue to progress to higher levels of efficiency.

Respectfully submitted,

F. W. COOK

Superintendent of Schools.

ANNUAL REPORT
ATTENDANCE DEPARTMENT
BOARD OF EDUCATION — 1934-1935

To the Board of Education:

I wish to submit the usual yearly comment upon our work which is summarized on the attached sheets.

Prevention of delinquency has become a vital problem for the whole nation this past year and in our small way, we try to meet the local issue. Authorities in the field offer ever changing suggestions for attack. Katherine Lenroot, Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., recently stated in a speech on Responsibility of the Community in Crime, "In terms of school organization, a serious attempt to meet problems of truancy and delinquency would include more widespread provision of slow-moving groups in the lower grades and provision of special assistance in remedial reading; expansion of special class organization so that the needs of all types of children might be met; provision of adequately staffed psychological and social services, with psychiatric service as needed, in the school department. It would mean attention also to vocational and other school activities for groups which formerly would have left school at an early age to enter industry."

"With reference to the juvenile court, this approach would mean gradual limitation of court action, as the more primary community agencies function more effectively."

"— at present coordinating councils are receiving much well deserved attention. They may, perhaps, be in danger of being 'oversold' as the juvenile court has been. Whether a more effective approach to the problems of crime prevention be focused on the home, the community, the school or the correctional institution, it must be strongly directed toward furnishing opportunities for creative experience."

Our Board of Education has made provision for Plainfield children along many of these lines — especially in providing fields for creative experience — by increasing the number of slow-moving groups in low grades, and by the present construction of a new shop to give vocational opportunities to adolescents under sixteen who would previously have been permitted to leave school to work. We have a local committee attempting to unite agencies into a community council. But we greatly feel the need of "adequately staffed psychological and social services, with psychiatric service, as needed, in the school department." We are still referring the children counted as problems in the "Big Brother" survey to the visiting psychiatric clinic for diagnosis and recommendation — but we need more of such service. If there is anything beneficial in early mental examination, it is during the child's school career that he first indicates such need by anti-social conduct, and should then have remedial treatment. It must be indeed discouraging to plan "educational" programs for older inmates of state penal institutions, who have become so long habituated in delinquency. And yet, it is in these "higher institutions of learning" that many of our delinquents get their first careful analysis. From the psychiatric examinations of 885 new admissions to Trenton State Prison in 1934 — it was learned that 47.9% or 410 had a psychiatric diagnosis. Of these 27% or 232 were constitutional defectives, i.e., individuals who present particular problems on account of definite judgment defects, untrustworthiness, unreliability, and emotional instability. 52.1% or 445 had no psychiatric condition. The intensive institutional classification plan with mental, physical, and psychiatric examinations as well as studies of social and economic background for each new patient results in his special assignment to housing, educational and work activities. If this minute study were given in classification of problem children, would it not likely prevent some future commitments to Trenton State Prison from our community? And wouldn't the school experience be a happier and more profitable one?

As for Miss Lenroot's suggestion regarding the sparing use of Juvenile Court, we have already cut down our complaints for school problems. Only five petitions involving six children were entered this past school year. Of these, three commitments to the State Board of Children's Guardians were made; two minors not attending school were returned to High School, and one to Continuation School.

The local Big Brother Committee has accomplished much in unifying community interest in the problem of social responsibility for delinquency. Two important public meetings were well attended with representatives of all public agencies, both local and county, and splendid speakers outlined coordinated efforts for crime prevention. This community need is discovered from practical observance of a few potential delinquents, the success of this end of the work depends largely on intensive follow-up and careful records of what is done. This office has kept all those records, has arranged conferences between visitors and parents, school officials and advisors, and at least two of the eleven children we are working with at present have been kept out of juvenile court and consequent institutional commitment this school year.

The special services of this office to other agencies and individuals, not directly associated with school attendance work, continue to increase. Reference to our records is sought for many purposes. We have prepared school records for the Board of Children's Guardians, the Charity Organization Society, the police, Referee of the Juvenile Court, Probation Office, applicants for citizenship papers, lawyers, and for business firms wishing age-grade information for applicants for placement. We have furnished to various agencies information for location of families and have submitted proofs of age for auto licenses.

The attendance and resultant school progress has been sadly affected by delays in supplying clothing for Emergency Relief Administration families this year. I trust the welfare agencies will soon be organized for long time planning for support of chronically dependent families so we will not need to look to temporary relief for help. The heads of these families crave and need the security of work with its just reward of a living wage. This economic insecurity of parents has damaging results on the success of their offspring. "We cannot afford to have poor people anyhow — whether they be lazy or busy — drinking or sober — virtuous or vicious — thrifty or careless — wise or foolish. It is a public nuisance as a private misfortune."

And yet with all our hopes and unattained aims we must realize with Oliver Wendell Holmes, "no man has earned the right to intellectual ambition until he has learned to lay his course by a star which he has never seen — to dig by the divining rod for springs which he may never reach."

Respectfully submitted,

DOROTHY S. PUTNAM
